

NEW OFFICERS START TERMS ON JAN. FIRST

Several Changes to Take Place Among the Officers.

BONDS UP TUESDAY

Last Term for Office of Assessor Is Very Likely.

Randall county officers will start a new year on January first, the old officials starting a new term of office, and new ones being inducted for a two-year period. Not so many changes will take place in the official family in Randall county as is the case in many counties of the state where the court houses were virtually cleaned in this year's election.

Grady Hazlewood will become district attorney, having been elected without opposition, to succeed Edward W. Thomerson, who retired from office.

Bob Barnett will become Sheriff and Tax Collector, succeeding John Fry, who was not a candidate for re-election. Mr. Fry retires after serving in this office for five terms.

Death removed J. A. Tate as Animal and Hide Inspector, and T. J. Cochran was appointed in his place and will continue in office.

Two new county commissioners were elected, J. B. Heath to succeed D. E. Covington, and W. H. Neal who will succeed W. M. Hess. J. L. Prichard succeeds B. Witherspoon as Justice of the Peace, and Wayne McCormick will become the constable in precinct No. 1.

Those who will continue in office, and will start a new term are: S. B. Orton, County Judge.

J. D. Barker, County Attorney. Berli Edwards Mayfield, County and District Clerk.

Burney Slack, Tax Assessor. Olive Schramm, County Treasurer.

G. G. Foster, County Surveyor. J. J. Bauer and W. E. Bennett, County Commissioners.

J. W. Turner, Justice of the Peace, and Chas. Beckman, Constable in Precinct No. 2.

It is notable that this will probably be the last time that Randall county will have the separate office of tax assessor. The constitutional amendment was approved by the voters in November consolidating the offices of tax assessor and tax collector, in counties with less than 10,000 population making the one office of Sheriff, Tax Assessor and Tax Collector. The coming session of the legislature will probably make this change effective two years hence.

The oldest official in Randall county in point of service is J. W. Turner of Umbarger. Mr. Turner has served as a public official since the county was incorporated in 1887. There are few men in Texas who have served so long in public office, and are re-elected year after year without a campaign.

Judge S. B. Orton stated yesterday that the commissioners court would meet Tuesday for the purpose of approving the bonds of the various officers. The old commissioners will check over the business of the county, and then swear in the two new commissioners.

R. N. Barnett announced yesterday that his deputies would be Glen Costley and E. J. Dunn. Mr. Dunn will have charge of the office work and tax collection.

New Roof Placed On Court House During the Week

Workmen have been engaged in putting a new roof on the court house this week.

The roof has been leaking badly, stated Judge S. B. Orton, and low prices of material and labor was taken advantage of in having the roof replaced.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Williams and children of Adrian visited the first of the week with Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Lon Davis and son of Floydada spent Christmas at the Henry Bradford home.

I BUY AT HOME

Because my interests are here. Because the community good enough for me to live in is good enough to buy in.

Because I believe in transacting business with my friends. Because I want to see the merchandise.

Because I want to get what I want when I pay for it. Because every dollar I spend at home works for the community in which I live.

Because the man I buy from stands back of the goods. Because here I live and here I hope to die.

Because the man I buy from pays his part of town, county and state taxes.

Because the man I buy from helps support my school, my lodge, my church, my home.

Because when ill luck, misfortune or bereavement come, the man I buy from is here with his kindly greeting, his pocketbook, if need be.

Many Tax Payers Cleaning Rolls Delinquent Taxes

Tax payments are coming in very well, especially payments of delinquent taxes, states John Fry, sheriff and tax collector.

Taxpayers have until Saturday night to pay up delinquent taxes and save all penalties and interest which may have accrued, under the terms of a bill passed by the last session of the legislature. Those who can raise the money have been making payments to clear their property of all delinquencies. After December 31st, all penalties and interest will be restored to delinquent taxes which have not been paid.

Empty Stocking Crusade Cheers Needy Children

Santa Claus presented 125 children with toys and Christmas goodies at the tree sponsored by the Empty Stocking Crusade in the Federated club room at the court house Friday afternoon. Each child received a bag of candy, fruit and nuts and a toy.

The Crusade distributed 26 baskets of groceries among the needy of the city on Christmas Eve.

The Crusade committee, headed by Mrs. John S. Humphreys as chairman, and members of the American Legion Auxiliary, the Woman's Book Club and the Junior Woman's Book Club, assisted by local citizens planned and carried out the Christmas program. Mrs. Humphreys and her committee wish to thank those who contributed either in work, food, or toys to the success of the crusade.

TO CONVENTION

S. W. Cain will spend the weekend in Dallas attending the annual convention of the Kansas City Life Insurance agents of Texas.

Guests in the Worth A. Jennings home this week were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hagood and son and Joe Jennings of Lorenzo, Mr. and Mrs. Vesta Hill of Perryton and Mr. and Mrs. Worth Jennings, Jr., of Tulia.

Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Livingston were here for the holidays from their ranch in Colorado to visit with their daughters, Mrs. Mark L. Foster and Mrs. Alvin Eastwood.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Price and son, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Myers and son, Mrs. Lillian Daffern and little daughter, all of Plainview, visited in the Will Myers home during the Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Newberry and children of near Lubbock are spending the holidays in the parental E. W. Woods home.

Miss Shirley Shook, who is teaching at House, New Mexico, spent the holidays at the parental home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shook.

Mrs. Locha Mae Doak of Amarillo spent Christmas at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Service of Oklahoma City are visiting his mother, Mrs. J. T. Service, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam M. Braswell of Clarendon spent Christmas at the home of his parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Braswell.

Elmer and J. C. Fite of Pampa spent Christmas in Canyon with their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Winkelman and son of Amarillo spent Christmas here at the Warwick home.

LEGISLATORS IN OPPOSITION TO CHANGING W. T.

Teachers Colleges Should Have Exclusive Field.

SEN. SMALL TALKS

Hall County Exes of W. T. Hold Annual Meet Tuesday.

Ex-students of W. T. in Hall county held the annual meeting of the organization in Memphis Tuesday night, at which time vigorous resolutions were adopted protesting any change in W. T. which might reduce the efficiency of the College. Herbert Gibson is president of the organization.

Senator Clint Small addressed the meeting, denying that there were too many teachers colleges in Texas. He would strengthen the position of the teachers colleges by making certificates from these colleges the highest in the state, and to give preference to these students, as graduates from the law college and medical college are given preference. He would turn teacher training back to the teachers colleges, which is their right field.

"Everyone must get along on less money than they have been spending, including the colleges," stated Senator Small in discussing the financial situation of the state. But he insisted that the efficiency of the colleges should not be lowered in the name of economy. He would like to see all of the boys and girls of the state educated at the expense of the state. However, Senator Small believed that an increase in tuition must be made, especially in the third and fourth years of college work.

Representative Bob Alexander of Childress stated that he did not wish to see it made any harder for any boy or girl in Texas to receive an education.

Wallace R. Clark discussed the teachers colleges' place in the field of education, and the work that was being done at W. T.

L. F. Sheffy made a short talk on the college and the work of the exes.

Mrs. Roy Guthrie, county superintendent, told of the splendid work being done by W. T. exes, and the high class of teachers who came from this institution. She was opposed to lowering the standards of the teachers colleges.

Dr. J. M. Black, J. H. Black, J. C. Black, Roy H. Wright, and J. C. Freeman went to Tulia Monday to visit the new creamery plant which is being operated by Walter Black and his associates.

Funeral Services Held Sunday For Mrs. C. E. Donnell

Mrs. C. E. Donnell died Friday evening at 7:35 o'clock at the family home, 2205 Fifth Avenue, after an illness of several months. The funeral services were held at the Baptist Church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, conducted by Rev. J. H. Hicks, pastor of the church. Mrs. Donnell has been a very active member of this church for many years, taking part in all of the affairs of the denomination.

Mrs. Donnell was born in Stephens county, December 13, 1879, being 53 years and 10 days of age at the time of her death. She was the wife of Dr. C. E. Donnell, prominent physician of Canyon. The family has lived in this city for the past 11 years, coming here from Silverton.

Surviving are her husband and three children, Miss Lillian Donnell, teacher in the Amarillo public schools; Reeves Donnell and Chas. E. Donnell. She is survived by one brother, K. D. Reeves of Stanley, N. M., and three sisters, Mrs. W. W. Wimberley of Midland, Mrs. W. O. Brown of San Benito and Mrs. W. B. Jago of Los Angeles, Calif.

The active pall bearers were S. B. McClure, Harvey Cash, F. E. Smith, W. H. Hardin, Henry Long and G. W. Johnson. Honorary pall bearers were Dr. J. A. Hill, Dr. Harris M. Cook, John S. Humphreys, J. L. Prichard, A. N. Burcham, W. J. Hinkle, L. L. Johnson, J. E. Cheyne, J. C. Dowd, J. S. Pool, H. W. Crain, and members of the Randall and Potter Medical Societies.

The body was taken to Silverton for interment, under the direction of the Griggs-Thompson Funeral Home.

Henry Bradford Has Arm and Ribs Broken in Fall

Slipping on the ice covered ground Thursday morning, Henry Bradford received a broken arm and three broken ribs. He stepped from his back porch without realizing how slick the ground was following the rain and sleet during the night.

Mr. Bradford is reported to be recovering nicely from the effects of the accident.

Miss Wanda Cain of Farwell and Miss Belva Cain of Claude are visiting this week with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Cain.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis Hill and daughter of Amarillo are visiting at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Hill.

Mrs. J. S. Harrison returned last week from a three weeks' visit with her son, Frank and his family in Phoenix, Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Atkins, and children of Amarillo were Christmas Day guests in the home of Mrs. R. W. Ratcliff.

BUFFS START FIRST TRIP OF NEW SEASON

Swedes Termed Professional, No Game Thursday.

TRIP STARTS TODAY

Tallest Team in America Gets Good Start For Season.

After receiving a telegram from officials of the A. A. U. Thursday that the Terrible Swede basketball team was composed of professionals, the Buffaloes cancelled the game for Thursday night. The manager of the team denied that his team was professional in any sense of the word, but Coach S. D. Burton was unwilling to subject the Buffs to the danger of being barred from the Kansas City tournament after having been warned that the Swede outfit was professional. Coach Burton notified other teams of this ruling, after having been warned of the standing of the Swedes.

The Buffaloes played a group of ex-Buff stars Thursday night and gave the large crowd a good demonstration of the ability of this year's aggregation. The Buffs won 58-37.

Coach Burton leaves today with the squad for the first road trip of the season.

On this trip he will engage Southwestern Teachers College at Weatherford on Dec. 30; Southwestern College, Winfield, Kans., Dec. 31; the Southern Kansas State Lines, Jan. 2; Oklahoma City university Jan. 4; and Phillips university on Jan. 5.

It is expected that ten men besides the coach will make the trip. They are Comer, Colvin, Monroe, and Harris, forwards; Stroud, Richards, Burk, and Williams, guards; Captain Joe Fortenberry, and "Big" John Walker, centers.

"If our defense will just function I believe we will have the greatest team we have ever turned out," declared Coach Burton when commenting on prospects for the season, and Canyon has had some great teams in the past. In eleven seasons a total of 233 games have been played, 199 have been won. In ten years of conference competition the Buffaloes have been champions six times, runners up twice and in third place twice.

Last year was the first appearance of the Buffs at the national tournament, but they proved the sensation of the tournament in the first round of play, when they defeated the Kansas City Athletic club blue diamonds, a team favored (Continued on last page)

New Comers to Canyon During the Past Week

The Chamber of Commerce announces as new comers to Canyon during the past several weeks: G. A. Costley, 2302 7th Avenue.

Rotary Club Will Entertain Ladies and Legislators

The annual Rotary Ann luncheon of the Canyon Rotary Club will be held next Tuesday night at 7:00 o'clock at the Presbyterian church. No meeting was held of the Rotary Club this week owing to the inventory time in progress in the business houses.

The ladies of the club will be entertained at the luncheon next Tuesday. Special guests of the club will be Senator and Mrs. Clint Small and Representative and Mrs. H. K. Stanfield. Representatives of the Amarillo Rotary club will be present.

The program is in charge of Joe Hill and Fred Wortham.

Christmas Time Sees Fair Weather, Little Snow

There was little snow remaining on the ground for Christmas as the result of showers during Thursday, followed by warm, sunshine Friday and Saturday. The weather was warm and very pleasant, although the highways which were not paved remained slippery.

Practically all of the churches had programs for the Sunday School children Saturday night.

Business was very brisk during the few days previous to Christmas, state business men of the city, and while not so large as in other years, yet greater in volume than most business houses had anticipated.

Gruver Publisher Wants to be Named as U. S. Marshall

F. R. Kreiger of Gruver, publisher of the News at that place, was here Thursday seeking support in his race for appointment as United States Marshal of Northwest Texas. Mr. Kreiger met a number of local people and asked for signatures on his petition to President-elect Roosevelt, Congressman Marvin Jones, and the two senators from Texas.

Mr. Kreiger was for a number of years deputy sheriff in Dallas county and has had considerable experience as a law enforcement officer.

Rev. C. W. Foote and family spent Christmas in Quanah at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Richerson. Rev. Foote went to Comanche to perform the wedding ceremony of his niece, Miss Jo Foote.

Joe Hill Jr. is here from Austin to spend the holidays with his parents. He is an engineering student in the university.

Miss Ruth Strain of Silver City, and Miss Martha Strain of Iowa Park are here for the holidays to visit at the parental C. E. Strain home.

Miss Velma Thomas visited Sunday and Monday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Thomas at McLean.

WINTER TERM OF DISTRICT COURT MONDAY

Judge Henry S. Bishop to Open Term at 9 O'clock.

BUSINESS IS LIGHT

Grady Hazlewood Starts Term as District Attorney.

The January term of district court will meet next Monday at the district court room. Judge Henry S. Bishop will convene the court at 9:00 o'clock, and immediately empanel and instruct the grand jury which will start its investigation of law violations in the county.

District Attorney Grady Hazlewood and Assistant Bob Underwood Jr. will assist the grand jury for

JURY SERVICE

Jury service is one of the most important phases of law enforcement. Too often qualified citizens object to accepting jury service, and attempt to evade their duty.

The success or failure of the jury system in court procedure depends upon the men who serve on the juries.

Citizens of Randall county believe in Law enforcement. But too many are unwilling to serve on juries.

With the opening of District Court next Monday, citizens who are called upon to serve on juries should accept this service, and with it assume responsibility to use their best efforts toward the enforcement of law.

the first term of their terms of office. Mr. Hazlewood has been assistant district attorney for the past six years, serving under both W. J. Flesher and Edward W. Thomerson. Underwood was recently appointed as assistant by Hazlewood.

Business for the term will be very light unless criminal business is returned by the grand jury. No civil cases of great importance have been filed for the term, and few criminal cases are on the docket ready for trial.

Quiet Christmas With No Violation of Law, Says Fry

Sheriff John Fry stated that this was the quietest Christmas he has experienced as a peace officer in Canyon. No arrests were made for any sort of law violations.

Mr. Fry states that no cases of drunkenness have been reported to him during the holiday season, which is a very unique record.

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Sheffy spent Christmas at the Dillehay home in Hereford.

Pat Gerald of Panhandle was here to spend Christmas with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gerald.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Burgess and twin sons of Tulia spent Christmas at the parental George Cox home.

Training School Opens Without Fee

Children of All Grades May Enroll Free of Charge

The training school of W. T. will be opened without fees to all children who may wish to enroll on January 3rd. In the past a small fee has been charged children enrolled in the training school, but on account of the financial conditions it was decided last night that for the balance of this year no fees would be collected, and children would be invited to enroll in all of the grades until these are filled.

A meeting was held attended by Supt. Irby Carruth, President Dan Sanders of the school trustees, President J. A. Hill and Supt. F. E. Savage of the training school. On account of the crowded condition in many grades in the public schools, it was decided that it was best to open the training school without fees and invite those children who wished to do so to transfer from the public schools to the training school on January 3rd. This includes all grades from the kindergarten to the eleventh grade. Text books are furnished the pupils. The training school has excellent equipment and teachers.

Practically all of the teachers colleges of Texas have made the same offer to local communities to assist with local school problems. Full co-operation is being extended from the administration of W. T. to the local school situation.

BEER INCOME

Of all the completely absurd arguments made for beer, the one relative to tax revenues is the most foolish. The wets say that they want beer in order to pay off the national debts, and provide revenues for the government. Before any business man agrees to support such a proposition, let him figure out just what beer means to the country.

We shall let these wets furnish the figures, and apply them to Randall county, as every business man in Canyon wants to know just what beer would do to and for him.

Some wet has estimated that the annual consumption of beer for every man, woman and child will be 15 gallons. Eliminating the preachers, teachers, and children who have more sense than to drink this slop, it leaves a pretty good gallonage for those who participate and have not much regard for their stomachs. But the wets are arguing for beer for its revenue sake, and impose a tax of $5 per barrel.

For the 7,000 people in Randall county, this means an annual consumption of 105,000 gallons or 3,387 barrels. The average retail price is set at 50 cents per gallon, or a total of $52,500 that would be spent by the people of Randall county for beer, say the wets. This means that $52,500 which is now being spent for bread and meat and clothes and implements and hardware, and other articles of use in Randall county would be diverted to the channels of booze. For this $52,500, the government would receive a tax of $16,935. The $35,465 difference would go to the few saloon keepers, and to the brewers. Are the business interests of Randall county willing to make such an exchange? We hardly believe so.

If you oppose such an absurd thing, write to your congressmen and senators, and ask them to oppose this foolish beer proposal. It comes at a time when the people are not thinking straight, and are willing to jump at most any proposal which might be made to bring in governmental revenues.

The News is gratified with the sentiment which has developed in West Texas to retain the colleges—West Texas State Teachers College, Texas Technological College, and Sul Ross Teachers College. But let no one in Canyon, or Lubbock or Alpine be deceived. The fight to retain these colleges at their present standards will not be an easy one. The forces opposed to colleges are well entrenched in the life of the state. The economic distress has offered an excuse which has not presented itself in the past. There are interests at work which care nothing for the welfare of the youth of Texas just so their tax rates are lowered. This crowd is in the minority, to be sure, but it is an aggressive minority, capable in leadership and with funds to spend in the most effective manner. They are ignorant of the necessity of teacher training, in the first place, and have therefore centered their fire on the teacher training institutions. If the towns in which the teacher training institutions are located are not willing to put up a hard fight, their cause will be lost; we say this with regret, but with an absolute certainty of fact. Let the citizens of Canyon do their part, and do it right now, if they wish to save W. T. as a four-year standard college. There is no use getting into a panic over the matter, as sober judgment and cool heads are needed at this time. The Chamber of Commerce will need a lot of money for this fight, and this is the first duty every property owner has—to make a liberal contribution to this fund.

There will be no one to mourn when 1932 takes its departure Saturday night. The New Year may not be welcomed in as kindly a manner as most New Years have been in the past, but the people generally are glad to see the present year wiped off the slate. From a business standpoint, most of our people thought the bottom had been reached in 1929 or 1931, but they found this idea to be erroneous. Even economists are uncertain as to 1933. Most all agree that the first half of 1933 will show no improvement over 1932, but are looking for better times after another harvest. Therefore, it will be with genuine pleasure that 1933 will be welcomed, as it is believed that a change for the better will be inevitable sometime during the year.

Considerable discussion goes on regarding Technocracy. With a superabundance of everything, machines are awaiting a favorable market that will further eliminate the use of labor, and increase production. The inventive brain of man continues to function more rapidly year by year. Men today are scoffing at Technocracy, just as they scoffed at Columbus, Franklin, Edison, the Wright Bros., and a host of others. What man thinks, he can accomplish. There are a lot of men thinking away down into the future.

The recommendations of the legislature's Economy and Efficiency Committee which proposes to take away all technical courses from Texas Tech at Lubbock and to reduce the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon to a junior college for local students, has met with a storm of protest throughout West Texas. Old timers will remember that the only schools the Panhandle had in an early day were paid for by the cattlemen of this region. As the country settled up, the matter of educational facilities for the children was of foremost importance among the citizens in every community and to that end, they raised their own tax rates and increased valuations in order to get the money with which to support their schools. The State of Texas profited financially since it collected taxes on the increased valuations and those who have lived in the Panhandle for fifteen or twenty years, remember very distinctly that most of our counties paid in to the State treasury for years, on a higher valuation than obtained in east and south Texas counties which were thickly settled. At the same time, the Panhandle was ignored and penalized in all kinds of ways and stigmatized as a fit dwelling place only for "rattlesnakes, prairie dogs and coyotes." East and south Texas were provided with institutions of higher learning before the Panhandle was given even one. Now that we have two, it is proposed to take them away from us. Take a look at the State supported schools of Texas. If a line were drawn straight north and south through Austin, it will be found that eleven of the State's higher educational institutions are east of that line with the Texas College of Arts and Industries at Kingsville in Kleberg County only a few miles west of it. In other words twelve of the sixteen State schools are in the east one-third of the state. Moreover, that same section of the State is served by more than fifty private and denominational schools. Possibly, the people of that area could get along without some of the State institutions but to take away the Panhandle's two schools would mean that all opportunity for higher education would be taken from thousands of students who could not afford to go so far away from home. Since its establishment twenty-two years ago, the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon has given greater educational opportunity to fifteen thousand Panhandle youths, of whom the majority could not have realized their ambition for further learning had they been compelled to go to Austin or to Bryan. The history of Texas Tech at Lubbock, shows plainly the demand for such an institution in this section. Although only seven years old, it ranks eighth in number of students, among the State-supported schools. The Panhandle needs these schools and is entitled to them in all fairness to the people and students of this section.—Southwest Plainsman, Amarillo.

Brownfield Herald: That committee of "efficiency" that met at Austin last week and recommended that a number of the Teachers Colleges be discontinued or consolidated, was the biggest freak we have ever heard of. After the state has spent millions to equip these colleges, they are to be scrapped or abandoned. And they want to make the Tech the step child of the A. and M. We don't know how the people of other sections of the state feel about the matter, but West Texas will demand that the Tech College remain as it is, and this goes for both the Teachers College at Canyon and Alpine. Outside of the School of Mines at El Paso and the Junior college at Stephenville, these are the only state schools there are in half of Texas, which in a few more decades will contain half the population. There will be a mell-of-a-hess down Austin way if they start junking any state colleges in West Texas.

EDUCATION, ALLY OF BUSINESS; IGNORANT SAVAGE MAKES POOR CUSTOMER AND ABSORBS LITTLE OF COMMERCE

Education has always been an ally of good business. And business men, it seems to this writer, should be the last to wish to cripple education in Texas. We grant that economy of administration is needed, but not curtailment of the spread of learning.

We do not think it is necessary to argue that education is the basis of any government which depends upon the masses for direct decisions affecting not only government in the ordinary sense, but economics as well. Of late it has been impossible to separate economics and government. Certainly, therefore, we cannot afford a nation of complex commercial fabric to entrust decisions to poorly educated voters. We have too many half-baked decisions as it is, both from the people as a whole and untrained representatives of the people.

Secondly, education creates demands for the products of business. The savages of the jungles have no education, few needs as they understand them, and are consequently poor customers. Education means refinement, and refinement calls for an increase in the comforts of the people. Economic advancement is parallel to absorption of the products of manufacturing.

We believe it has been rightly said that the world's chief ills are in salesmanship, distribution, and consumption. As a theory, we cannot accept a permanent solution based upon turning backward to the horse and buggy era and the more primitive means of distribution. We do not believe that because man has achieved marvels in production he should hide or wreck his machines. Human genius is a blessing and not a curse. The curse is in the faulty system which prevents sharing of benefits by all deserving people. That system needs revision—but the solution is not in drastic steps backward. The nation and the world need leaders who can correct the abnormalities which have been developing for the two decades and which were projected as a major problem by the world war.

The great problems in social and economic organization face the nation: 1. To so organize industry and commerce that machine production will mean shorter hours and guarantees of employment, instead of unemployment and stark fear; 2. To make possible means for attaining old age security. The second problem should not be impossible if the first is solved. We do not believe these reforms need cause any sort of revolution. They are not inimical to the capitalistic system of rewards according to energy and genius.

We do now believe that the problems can be worked out through a period of thoughtful years. And we know of nothing more essential during this period than a general diffusion of learning. Education of the future must be world-enveloped in its scope. There are no longer any frontiers of civilization. Life cannot be safe for any until it is safe for all, until correlation and cooperation grow out of a kindness of mind and learning, until the substance of mankind is not spent on guns but on comfort for humanity.—Pampa Daily News, Dec. 11, 1932.

The man who can't find an excuse so easily has a brighter prospect than the one who can.

Now and then you'll find a practical joker who appreciates a joke upon himself.

The fellow who goes back on his friends can never understand why he has so few.

While it is true a lot of money is spent each year for fun, there are some folks who never seem to have any.

Experience that keeps you awake at night is the kind that does you the most good.

Heroic Pilot Wins a Bride

Pilot Charles F. Sullivan, left, who won a hero's laurels when he recently led to safety two navy planes lost in a fog near San Diego, Calif., has now won himself a bride. She is Winston Kelly of Tacoma, Wash., shown above with her fiancé. Sullivan accomplished his air feat by means of radio phones which the navy planes did not have.

The Joy of Achievement

Is beyond question the greatest and most laudable of human emotions.

The joy is doubly great, when achievement is the result of honest, conscientious and sustained effort to accomplish a worthy goal.

During the year now gone, we have been diligent in our efforts to give you as nearly as completely satisfactory Gas Service as possible, and to accompany that service with a uniform courtesy to all.

In beginning a new year we renew our resolve to merit your good will, your patronage and, we hope, your friendship, by a constant effort on our part to ever keep before our minds the idea of a "100 per cent service and courteous treatment to all."

RELICS OF OLD TEXAS COLLEGE RECEIVED HERE

GIFTS OF SCHOOL ATTENDED BY DR. AND MRS. HILL AT SALEDOL, TEXAS.

Dr. J. A. Hill recently received two valuable contributions for the P. P. H. S. Museum from the old Saledol College located at Saledol, Texas, a few miles south of the present city of Belton.

One of the gifts is the clapper from the old school bell, and the other is a stone from the wall of the building, now fast falling into ruins. According to Dr. Hill, the bell clapper will be displayed in a case with an historical account of the ancient institution. The block of stone from the Saledol wall will probably be placed in a campus sidewalk bearing an explanatory inscription.

Saledol College was one of the earliest educational institutions in Texas. It was chartered February 8, 1860. It survived for more than forty years as a prominent center of education, being finally replaced by larger and more modern state and denominational schools.

Many prominent citizens of the state received their education there. Several Canyon residents attended the private prep school into which it was converted after it was discontinued as a college. Both Dr. Hill and Mrs. Hill, a native of Saledol, are graduates of the Saledol High School at which time the late husband of Mrs. Marion Witt, Cousins Hal matron, was principal of the school.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

At this happy season of good will it is a pleasure to express to you our appreciation of the business you have entrusted to us.

More than anything else we value the personal friendships it has been our privilege to enjoy, and which today seems to have become a very part of our business.

It has been said that there is no sentiment in business—but to us there is a sentiment—something very human in business—at least in our business.

The words of cheer and kindness along with the words of friendly criticism which you have spoken, have helped us to attain whatever success has been ours through our years in business.

As you turn the calendar leaves of 1933, may you find each day brighter and more fruitful of good. That is our wish for those who have been so loyal to us in the year just closing.

Wayside Items

After the snow and cold weather recently we welcome these bright sunny days. This is the fourth day of sunshine. Rain and snow was certainly good for the failing wheat.

Holidays are passing quietly in our little burgh.

Christmas tree at the school house Saturday night was fairly well attended, considering the muddy condition of the roads. Still bad, though drying slowly. But little wind.

Santa Claus was very kind, not only treating the assembled crowd but sending treats to those not there.

Rev. J. R. Plant gave us an excellent Christmas sermon Sunday morning. So few in attendance, Sunday School was dispensed with. Supt. Moore went to Knox County, called by illness, assistant W. C. McGehee invited to his mother's for dinner and so few came and so late it was decided not to call Sunday School.

Carl and Ida May Rogers from Jones County are visiting the parental W. H. Hamblen home during the holidays.

George Hancock and wife with Jerry Lane came in Friday night, visiting the Lane home. All the family have been sick with tonsillitis. They left Monday to take dinner with Miss Sallie McGehee in Canyon, and to Pampa in the afternoon.

Quite a few of the community have flu, colds and some threatened with pneumonia.

Wyatt Heisler, wife and children left Friday to visit Mrs. Annie Heisler at Pampa. She is not doing so well as relatives and friends would like to see her.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Carter, Eugene Carter, wife and little daughter are assisting in caring for the Heisler home while the family is away.

W. R. Franklin and family, including Roy and wife, M. E. Couterman and family, M. C. Sluder, wife and Erma Lou visited the Sluder home Christmas day. Rev. Plant and Willis Modisette, Pittsburg, Okla., were dinner guests also.

After a month's visit to relatives in Oklahoma, Mrs. M. C. Sluder and Erma Lou reached home Saturday morning. She was accompanied by her brother Willie Modisette of Pittsburg, Okla.

W. C. McGehee and family, W. D. McGehee and D. K. McGehee, wife and Mary Lee were dinner guests at Mrs. L. J. McGehee of Canyon Christmas day. Needless to add they had a good time together.

Mrs. W. T. Helms suffers excruciatingly all the time, has no hours of ease. She takes no nourishment but butter milk.

W. J. Sluder still suffers greater part of the time with antritis.

Mrs. I. C. Jenkins is spending the holidays with Ira Jenkins and wife in Houston.

Umbarger Items

A number of Umbarger people attended the program given by the school children last Thursday. Everybody reported a good time.

The snow and rain which we had for the last two weeks is a great benefit to the wheat and left the fields in good condition for spring plowing.

The county roads which were nearly impassable for the last week are drying up, but are in bad condition.

Wilford Taylor, who has been on the sick list last week, is improving from a case of flu.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schulenberg and family were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Fischbacher and family last Sunday.

Elmer and Victor Friemel spent Christmas afternoon with John and Edward Wieck.

Santa Claus visited the Umbarger school last Friday and gave gifts to the children.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wieck were business callers in Amarillo Friday.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Among Other Things, Sportdom in 1932 Saw Uncle Sam Cop the Olympics And Sarazen Play Jones-Like Golf

BY PHILIP MARTIN

NINETEEN THIRTY-TWO has been a rich year for sports followers.

There has been a decided improvement in the fight game; baseball, while practically a walk-away for the Yankees in the American League, was a nip-and-tuck affair in the National circuit; the Olympic games were never-to-be-forgotten sights; golf produced several new champions; tennis saw the rise of one brilliant star, and football turned out some thrillers.

The ring produced several new champions. They were Jack Sharkey, heavyweight; George Nichols, National Boxing Association's choice for the light heavyweight throne; Jackie Fields, welterweight; Marcel Thil, France, middleweight; Kid Chocolate, New York Boxing Commission's choice, Tommy Paul, N. B. A.'s pick, and Baby Arzemandi, California's selection, featherweights, and Jackie Brown, England, flyweight.

THE football season's end saw three undefeated and untied teams in the country—Southern California, Michigan and Colgate. These three were champions of their sections of the country, while Auburn, Tennessee, and Louisiana State shared the honors in the south.

Texas Christian won the southwestern title, Nebraska took the Missouri Valley Conference championship, and Utah was on top in the Rocky Mountain district.

The past year saw the exit of three famous coaches from the scene. They were Amos Alonzo Stagg, venerable Chicago mentor; Major Ralph Sasse, Army coach, and Major Frank Cavanaugh of Fordham.

Gene Sarazen was the leading golfer in 1932 in the men's division, and Virginia Van Wie copped the women's laurels. Gene won both the British and U. S. Opens, a trick performed in one year only by Bobby Jones, who won both tournaments in 1926 and 1929.

Miss Van Wie took the honors in the U. S. Women's tournament.

Above, Jack Sharkey, heavyweight champion; center, Gene Sarazen, leading golfer of 1932, who won the British and U. S. Opens, and, below, Ellsworth Vines, Jr., 1932 tennis star.

IN tennis, Ellsworth Vines, Jr., tall, tanned Californian, was easily the best of the lot. His greatest conquest was that of Henry Cochet, brilliant and temperamental French star.

Vines was the only possible contender for national honors up until the time the men's singles were played at Forest Hills last September. The way the lean coast boy defeated the veteran Frenchman left little doubt as to his class.

Earlier in the year Vines also took the men's singles at Wimbledon.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, little "poker face," again proved she was the class of the women ranks when she took the women's singles at Wimbledon.

The Olympic games at Los Angeles finished with Uncle Sam a winner by a large margin of points, and with U. S. stars setting 11 new world track and field records, 14 new Olympic records, and tying two world marks.

Standout performances during the games were those of Bill Carr in the 400-meter run; Babe Didrikson's capture of the women's javelin throw and the women's 800-meter hurdles; Eddie Tolan's victories in the dashes; Leo Sexton and John Anderson in the weight events, and Jim Bausch's victory in the decathlon with a world's record score of 8462 points.

BASEBALL saw the New York Yankees walking away from the Chicago Cubs in the world series. The Yanks took the classic in four straight games.

The ball season also brought forth the fact that the major leagues must come to the rescue of the minors in 1933. Attendance during the past year in the minors fell off considerably, and several small leagues folded up their tents.

The winter trade season saw the strengthening of the New York Giants, Cincinnati Reds, St. Louis Cardinals, Washington Senators, Boston Red Sox, St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers by reason of several trades made between the various clubs.

Zita Breezes

Old Santa visited the children Saturday night after the program and distributed many gifts and bags.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Matthews and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. F. J. McMahan and son visited Mrs. Emma Gruner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Groom spent Sunday at the C. C. Stewart home.

W. E. McCormick and children spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Kellogg of Wildorado.

The Women's Bridge Club entertained the men Wednesday evening with a buffet dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bailey McCormick. High score went to Mr. and Mrs. Bailey McCormick and low went to Mr. and Mrs. Jim Watson. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Bud Owens, Mr. and Mrs. John Moody, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Fulton, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Fulton, Miss Ina Stewart, Forrest Gruner and Mr. and Mrs. Bailey McCormick.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moody were visitors Sunday in Amarillo.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey McCormick left Thursday for Rankin, Texas to spend the Christmas holidays with Mrs. McCormick's folks.

Miss Ila Mae Hastings visited part of last week with Miss Birda Ann Hastings.

Mrs. C. C. Stewart spent Tuesday with Mrs. D. C. McCormick.

Rusk Quizzes

We certainly have appreciated the warm weather we have had during the Christmas holidays. The snow is melting very rapidly.

Mrs. J. T. Sykes is giving a New Year's party at her home Friday night, December 30th. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Smith and family and Ray Prichard ate Christmas dinner with Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Sykes and family Sunday.

Miss Leona Dawdy spent Monday night with Lorene and Lucille Smith.

Miss Maud Dawdy and Miss Willie Mae Babb of Plainview are spending the Christmas holidays with Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Dawdy and family.

J. T. Sykes and John Royal motored to Amarillo Monday.

CHRISTMAS PARTY

AT GOODMAN HOME

The Christmas motif in red and green lent a holiday atmosphere to the home of Mrs. A. K. Goodman, 1904 Sixth Avenue, when she entertained members of Las Senoras Nuevas with bridge Wednesday afternoon.

The afternoon's play was fittingly closed with a tasty refreshment course in keeping with the Christmas season.

Seated were: Mrs. W. E. Miller, Mrs. Owen Williams, Mrs. Claude Moore, Mrs. J. Madison Daugherty, Mrs. Hud Prichard, Mrs. Felix Neff, Mrs. N. E. McIntire, Mrs. Wm. Ash, Mrs. W. D. Mateer, Mrs. C. W. Batchelder, Mrs. Edmondson, Mrs. Mitchell Jones, and Mrs. L. Wirt.

HARTMANS ENTERTAIN

1925 CLUB TUESDAY

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hartman were hosts to the members of the Tuesday Nite Club at their home, 1512 Sixth Avenue, Tuesday evening.

Tables were placed for bridge in the pleasant rooms of the Hartman home. Holiday tallies and score pads were used during the play.

A tasty dessert course was served the following: Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Madison Daugherty, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Neff, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Ferrell, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wood and Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Farlow.

Irby Carruth returned yesterday from Olton where he visited at the home of his father.

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. George of Dawn were in the city yesterday.

LOVELY YULE PARTY

AT BURROW HOME

Mrs. C. R. Burrow and Mrs. R. A. Neblett entertained Wednesday afternoon with one of the most delightful parties of the Yuletide season.

Six tables were placed for bridge in the entertaining rooms of the Burrow home, 1110 Fifth Avenue. The holiday motif was developed in the decorations, in the bridge table accessories and in the delicious refreshment course served following the games.

Guests included: Mrs. Millard Word of Endee, N. M.; Mrs. Harris M. Cook, Mrs. Ray McReynolds, Mrs. F. F. Ferrell, Mrs. T. M. Moore, Mrs. Sue Donald, Mrs. W. A. Warren, Mrs. G. A. Farlow, Mrs. John Fry, Mrs. Geraldine Green, Mrs. Clyde McElroy, Mrs. A. W. Sternberg, Mrs. Dan K. 1925 CLUB MEETS

AT PRICHARD HOME

Mrs. Hud Prichard and Mrs. Burt Newlin were joint hostesses in entertaining the members of the 1925 Club at the Prichard home, 910 Sixth Avenue, Wednesday afternoon of last week.

The reds and greens of the Christmas season furnished the theme for the decorations in the rooms where games of bridge were in progress. At the refreshment hour a dessert course of plum pudding with cheese and coffee was served. Plate favors of miniature Christmas stockings filled with candies were presented each guest.

Club members and special guests included: Mrs. Frank Hicks, Mrs. H. W. Hartman, Mrs. J. Madison Daugherty, Mrs. G. A. Farlow, Mrs. Frank R. Phillips, Mrs. Mark Foster, Mrs. A. R. Eastwood, Mrs. L. Wirt, Mrs. Oscar Gano, Mrs. J. L. Dufflot, Mrs. Joe Black and Mrs. Chas. Flesher.

MISS McREYNOLDS

ENTERTAINS THURSDAY

Miss Thelma McReynolds entertained Thursday afternoon with a delightful Yuletide bridge party at her home. Holiday decorations were attractive in the reception rooms and the table accessories followed a Christmas motif.

At the conclusion of the play Miss Kathryn Bryant held high score. A dainty dessert course was served to the following: Misses Ethel Brasuel, Mary Ellen Owen, Wilmoth Gamble, Dorothy Faye Rusk, Mildred Gregory, Kathryn Bryant, Ione Pearl McClure, Gwendolyn Black, and Mesdames G. C. Fitzgerald, Tommie Elliston and Herman Smith.

Mrs. G. C. Bowling is visiting with relatives at Honey Grove. Miss Esther Rudolph of McAllen is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Dan K. Usery.

Miss Columbia Redfearn surprised members of the Rebekah Lodge with a Christmas treat at their regular meeting Tuesday evening. Following the routine work of the lodge, Miss Redfearn served holiday refreshments of fruit, candy and nuts.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Benge, Mrs. Dollie Taylor, Mrs. Mildred Sullivan, Mrs. Winnie Louder, Mrs. Minnie Hendrix, Mrs. Margaret Cole, Miss Mae Warren and Miss Redfearn.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Order of services for next Sabbath at the Presbyterian Church: The hour for the opening of the Sabbath School is 9:45 a. m. Congregational worship begins at eleven o'clock; and in connection with this service an opportunity will be given to unite with the church, and the Lord's Supper will be celebrated.

As next Sabbath will be New Year's Day, it will be a good time for you to join the church and begin a new life. In what other way can you start the New Year so well? Then decide what church you prefer to join, and join it on that day. You have procrastinated long enough. "Procrastination is the thief of time."

CORRUPT OFFICIALS

If any compilation has been made of the total number of public officials, state and local, convicted of corruption in any given number of recent years, it has escaped our attention. But the total must be disagreeably large. If all the items were brought together in one place, the effect might be wholesome; it might give the citizen a needed jar. Unfortunately, the newspapers print very little about the misconduct of officials outside their own territory. A commissioner in another state who is found to have banked about fifty times his salary gets a few paragraphs; a defaulting county auditor in another state is disposed of with a line or two.

On rare occasions much interest is taken in charges preferred against a state or local official, but for the most part these episodes go unnoticed except in limited circles. What is needed is to bring home to the people, not the details of one conspicuous instance, but the cumulative effect of case after case of corruption. In no other way will the public realize that good government is impossible with such low standards of official integrity as are shown to exist in so many individual instances.

It is a common defense of such conditions to say that, after all, most public officials are honest; that thousands of hard working and poorly paid policemen and firemen in the cities are certainly above reproach, and that graft is found in private business as well as in public office. But these statements are all beside the point. The public official has a peculiar responsibility to the people and fills a position of greater trust than the private business man, except, perhaps the banker. He is supposed to set an example, and the position which he occupies gives him a standing in the community out of proportion to his usual merits and far beyond that which a business man of the same ability attains.

It is difficult to say why so many public positions have come to be filled by men lacking the first instincts of honor. Large numbers of the better elements, while still doing business in the great cities, no longer vote there, but in small outlying suburbs. Yet the corrupt official is not confined to cities with two million or more inhabitants. The trouble goes deeper than shifts of population. It has been due to carelessness, to the absorption of the average citizen in his own affairs, with no time given to building up standards of public service. It is part of the happy go lucky methods which have characterized American life up to the present.

Meanwhile, underlying conditions improve, it is a happy chance that the Federal Income-Tax Law is proving the Nemesis of so many corrupt officials. Failure to pay income taxes on the ill-gotten gains of graft is bringing one official after another to book. President Hoover once remarked, in connection with the Capone case, that it was no cause of pride to him that certain gangsters were cornered only by means of their failure to pay income taxes. In the same way, it is no cause for civic pride that the dishonest public official should be disgraced and punished only through this instrument.

Yet why not be thankful for small favors? As long as a Federal income tax is necessary, there is real cause for congratulation that it should reach everybody with money. No one supposed, when this tax was adopted, that it would become one of the most effectual detective agencies in the country. It is one weapon which actually reaches the grafter.

Start the New Year in a Blaze of Color

LATE PARTY GOWNS FEATURE SLIT FRONT AND BACK, FUR TRIM, JEWEL CR-NAMENTS AND RICH TONES

BY HARRIET

HOLIDAY party clothes positively inspire you to give a party yourself, if no one else is in the mood, just so you can dress up.

Party dresses in rich colors are just about the nicest thing you can have for the holidays since they look so perfectly lovely against the New Year's bright colors.

For the New Year's dance itself, you probably will want a real party dress, the kind that flatters you no end and looks just made for dancing.

ONE perfect dress for the holidays is a rose-colored crepe, a gorgeous rich color that is decorative in itself and yet is made more lovely, in this instance, by a twin trim of lace and sable-dyed kolinsky fur.

It is the kind of dress you can wear anywhere to a dress-up party or to an informal one. It fits gorgeously, with front and back slashed below a comparatively high neckline. The fur and lace make cute little sleeves with huge armholes outlined. There is a glittering buckle to its self-material belt. And to top it off just right there is a little evening hat of gold and rose brocade, with a mist of rose tulle about it, giving you a kind of roseate halo, which does a lot for a woman.

If you happen to be away from home for the holidays and need something that is good for restaurant wear, the theater or parties after the theater, there is a striking study in black and white that will stand by for innumerable good times.

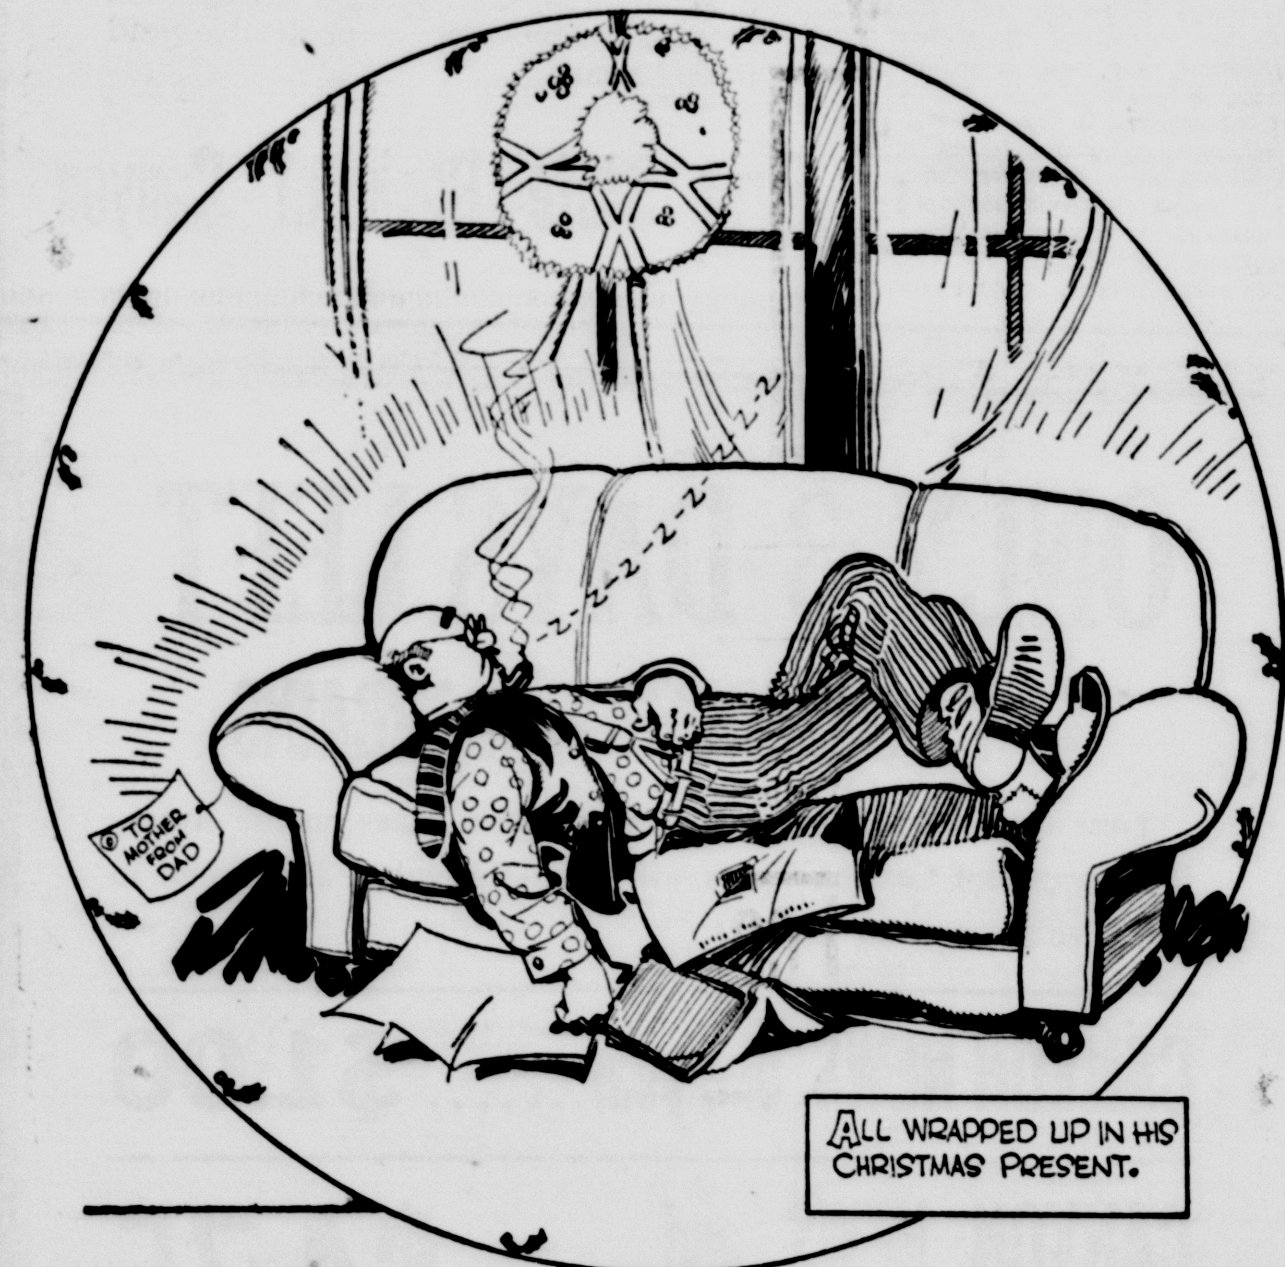

It has a long skirt, fitted nicely, dress of silk and wool in black, looking a lot like uncut velvet. The little jacket's slit back gives you an idea how very low the back of the plain black dress is. The front rounding up modestly

May Be Next Speaker

Here is a late picture of Representative Henry Thomas Rainey of Illinois, present majority leader of the House of Representatives, who will vie with Representatives Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee and John McDuffie of Alabama for the speakership of the 73d Congress. Rainey, 72, entered Congress in 1903.

WHEN NOVEMBER COMES

A man walked into a hat shop. "I've just lost a bet," he said, "and I want a soft hat." The salesman, selecting a hat from the shelf behind him, handed it to the prospective customer with the remark: "This is the softest hat we've got." The customer gazed at it speculatively. "What I want," he said, "is something a little more tender. I've got to eat it." Dundas Star.

FLATFOOT

The policeman's son was learning music. "How many beats are there to the bar in this piece of music, Dad?" "Fancy asking a policeman a question like that," said the boy's mother. "If you asked your daddy how many bars there were to the beat he might have been able to tell you."—Tit-Bits.

PERSISTENCE IS LIKE COMPOUND INTEREST

Some chronic faultfinder went up to Billy Sunday one night after the evangelist had made a strong appeal which brought a long parade of penitent people down the "sawdust trail" and said: "You're a fake! You get people all stirred up. They hit the trail. But your conversions don't last."

"Well," said Billy, "neither does a bath."

And we might add, "Nor a customer." Your best customer is usually your competitor's best prospect. Someone is always after the people to whom you sell and unless you keep everlastingly after your customers and keep them sold, your customers won't last.

It works both ways, too. If you keep hammering at your best prospect and do it more consistently than your competitor, ultimately he will be your best customer instead of his.

In this connection, a recent survey made by a retail dry goods association showed that 80 per cent of all sales are made after four or more calls. It also showed that—

48 per cent of the salesmen who called, made one call and did not come back.

25 per cent made two calls and quit.

15 per cent made three calls and quit.

12 per cent made four calls or more.

The 12 per cent who made four calls or more got 80 per cent of the orders. It is the constant pounding away that gets the business.—Bindery Talk.

RESPONSIBILITY SHIFTS

Now that the bonfires have all burned out and hoarseness has followed up the shouting, two things are established, though all things else be disputed—the depression and the Literary Digest poll. The Republicans argued, indeed, that the former might have been worse, but it took the actual election returns to prove to them that the latter might have been worse also.

What sort of President Franklin Roosevelt will make, the country does not know. There was vagueness—calculating vagueness—in some of his speeches and shallow thinking in others. In the sober eyeing of responsibility which confronts the party now the President elect becomes a question mark. But the hope of any incoming Chief Executive is not in what he is but what he is to be. Franklin Roosevelt grew measurably at Albany and there is no reason to believe that his shadow will not shrink at Washington.

Hospitality to new ideas and the disposition to require old ideas to give an accounting seems to mark Mr. Roosevelt. Most of the country, it appears, is of like mind to that extent. The Senate and the House will be with him. Moses and Smoot will be gone; Jim Watson will be absent; Brookhart draws like-wise a six-year vacation from his constituents. Every pile of dispatches eliminates other members of the Old Guard, as well as of the old malcontents.

The Democratic party has a marvelous opportunity to restore idealism to a place in national and international dealing, but whether it is able to seize the chance depends on international discipline. The party is notably lax in self-government but the time has come when the ranks must close up, if the fruits of victory are to be assured to the whole people. In that consolidation there must be a generalship and Franklin Roosevelt will be expected to supply it. Surely his shoulders begin already to feel the weight that they must bear.—Dallas Semi-Weekly News.

RECIPE FOR WRINKLES

"Hullo, old man! How you've changed! What's making you look so old?"

"Trying to keep young," was the reply.

"Trying to keep young?"

"Yes—none of them," was the gloomy response.

NEW YEAR'S GREETING

There will be but few, if any, regrets when 1932 takes its leave.

In the midst of a nation counting its pennies, there have been occasional bright spots.

Safe, yet progressive plans will continue to rule this country, and we are sure you will agree that the New Year starts with the trend already toward better conditions with our experience that we have had.

However, as we look back over the past year, we can not help but have a deeper, more sincere appreciation of what the friendship of our customers has meant to us.

May we then, at this season, express not only our appreciation of the business given us but our wish that you will have a more prosperous New Year, more friends, and more happiness.

PRESIDENTS' FAMILIES

Some facts regarding the family relations of our presidents may be of interest, as they are probably little known to the average reader. How many, for example, could tell offhand how many presidents never married? The answer is, only one, Buchanan.

All the rest were married, and five of them twice. Tyler, Fillmore Benjamin Harrison, Roosevelt and Wilson. Seven married widows, Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Jackson, Fillmore, B. Harrison and Wilson, the last three taking widows as their second wives.

The wives of Jefferson, Jackson, Van Buren and Arthur died before their husbands became president. Cleveland went into office as a bachelor, but was married during his first term.

Washington, Madison, Jackson, Polk and Harding were childless. Tyler was the father of 14 children, seven by each of his wives. W. H. Harrison was the father of 10. Hayes was the father of eight, Jefferson, Taylor and Roosevelt were the fathers of six each.

Two widows of presidents remarried. Mrs. Cleveland married T. J. Preston, Jr., a professor of archeology, in 1913, about five years after her husband's death. Mrs. Benjamin Harrison married James Blaine Walker, Jr., her third husband, in 1921, when she was 64 years of age.

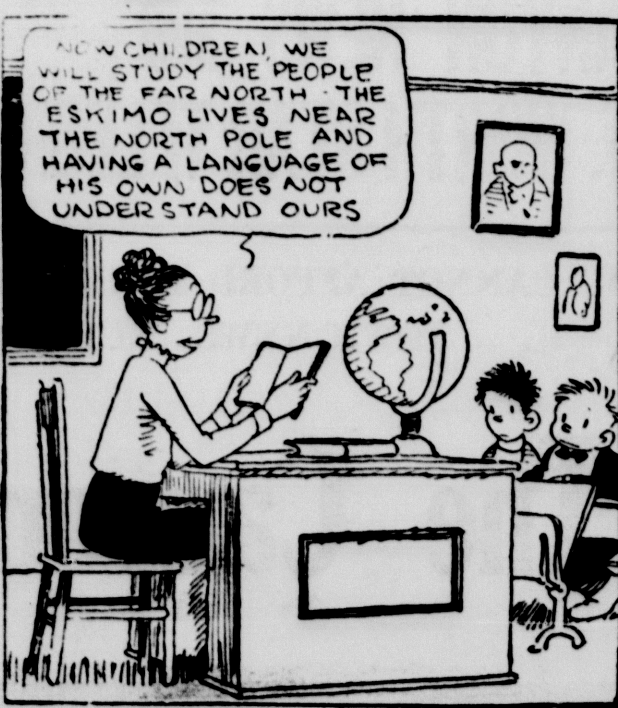

The most unusual circumstance connected with the marital relations of any president concerned Andrew Jackson. Believing that Mrs. Lewis Robards had been divorced from her husband, he married her in 1791, only to discover that the decree of divorce had not yet been granted. Later the decree was issued and Jackson remarried Mrs. Robards in 1794.

Plains Territory Aroused By Recent Committee Threats

From all over the Plains country comes the news that various kinds of civic organizations, including Chambers of Commerce, Boards of City Development, Rotary Clubs, etc., are passing resolutions expressing their positive positions in regard to the recent recommendations of the Legislative Committee on Economy and Efficiency. These organizations, whose purpose it is to foster the development of the various communities of West Texas, are preparing for a fight to the finish any proposal which will handicap or abolish the work of the West Texas State Teachers College or Texas Technological College.

Among the many organizations who have organized for action outstanding are the reports of the Chamber of Commerce of Canyon, The Board of City Development of Amarillo, the Chamber of Commerce of Odessa, Chamber of Commerce of Pampa, and the Board of City Development of Pampa.

At Odessa, Texas the Chamber of Commerce has drawn up a set of resolutions and have placed them in the hands of both the state senator and the state representative from that district.

At Pampa the Board of City Development met last Monday and prepared a set of resolutions from which the following statement is taken:

"Be it resolved that the Pampa Board of City Development expresses its disapproval of the report of the Committee on Efficiency and Economy as affecting West Texas institutions of learning and they oppose with all their resources any plan to take from the students of this section the educational opportunities guaranteed by the Texas Constitution and merited by the expansion of West Texas and the taxes paid by her citizens."

Mystery of Grad's Dilemma Is Solved Figures Reveal All

Did you ever wonder what has become of all the folks in the Class of '30 or some '25 or some other time? And have you heard it said that the graduates of W. T. do not teach?

A study was made, under date of December 10, trying to answer this question and argument which is often heard. The classes of 1930, 1931 and 1932 were chosen for study, because all these classes have come into the teaching field since the beginning of the period of depression and so-called over supply of teachers.

Of the class of 1930, numbering 115, 89 or 77.3 percent are now teaching; 9 or 7.8 percent have taught one or more years since graduation; 14, or 12 percent have not taught—and their whereabouts is unknown; 2, or 1.7 percent are deceased; 1, or .8 percent has taken the vows of the pulpit.

Of the class of 1931, with 108 members, 80 or 74 percent are now teaching; 10, or 9 percent have taught one year since graduation; 18, or 17 percent, are not teaching or their whereabouts is unknown.

Economic Conditions Make 1932 Year of Unusually Big News Events

OTHER than the Lindbergh kidnapping case and its tragic ending, many of the big news events of 1932 resulted from the continued failure of prosperity to return from around that corner.

An important news happening of the past year—and one directly attributable to the economic situation—was the bonus army march to Washington in June. Its mission of pressing Congress to pass measures for pre-payment of the veterans' bonus failed, and when the marchers, mostly ex-service men, expressed their determination to stay until their money was assured them, President Hoover called out the troops. By tear gas and bayonet end the vets were ejected from the capital. Earlier in the year, a band of 10,000 "hunger marchers," led by Father Cox of Pittsburgh, had descended on Washington.

The big political news event of the year in America was the national election. And here again the economic situation had its inking. Dissatisfied with conditions, American voters made the most drastic reversal of voter opinion ever recorded when the nation jumped from a Hoover plurality of 6,000,000 in 1928 to a Roosevelt plurality of 7,000,000 in 1932, at the same time switching the balance of power from Republicans to Democrats in Congress.

PERHAPS nothing throughout 1932 affected the American public as strongly as did the kidnapping of little Charles Lindbergh, Jr., son of the noted aviator and the former Anne Morrow, from his crib in the Lindberghs' Soudan Mountain, N. J., home. A tremendous tide of public indignation flooded the nation's papers, compelling action even from the White House and Congress. Every measure to recover the golden-haired child proved futile, its body being found several months later, partly buried, in the mountains near its home.

In foreign news, the Sino-Jap disturbance for a time captured American headlines. In reprisal for Chinese boycott of their products, Japanese bombed Shanghai on Jan. 28. There ensued several months' fierce fighting, which ended in a truce on May 4.

Man achieved new records in the air and sea. Prof. August Piccard attained the highest altitude ever reached when he ascended nearly 11 miles into the stratosphere. And Dr. William Beebe, in his bathysphere, made the deepest descent ever made into the sea—2200 feet in the waters off Bermuda. Captain Roscoe Turner flew across the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast in the record time of 12 hours, 22 minutes. Captain James Mollison made the first solo

Of the class of 1932, which had 154 members, 109, or 70.7 percent are teaching at present; 37, or 24 percent are not teaching; 8, or 5 percent are listed as whereabouts unknown.

In each of these classes there have been a number of married women who were taking their college work for its cultural value and with no expectation of teaching; there were a few men and women who live within the natural territory of this college who used its facilities to prepare themselves for further study in other fields than teaching. And, as is to be expected among the novitiates of any profession, there have been a few who have not secured employment in the field of teaching. Most of these, however, have secured some kind of employment where they are rendering good service to society, and it is reasonable to expect that some of these will be later found in the ranks of teachers.

After all nothing on earth can move as rapidly as a thoroughly idle rumor.

flight across the Atlantic from east to west in a tiny plane. And Amelia Earhart Putnam flew from Harbor Grace to Ireland in the first solo flight ever made by a woman across the Atlantic.

Of great interest, popular and scientific, was the solar eclipse on Aug. 31. Among science's important achievements during 1932 are listed the probable discovery of the cause and means of prevention of tooth decay; the development of vaccines which will give humans protection against typhus and yellow fever; a hormone test for determining the sex of an unborn child; the discovering of a new pain-killing anesthetic, dihydromorphine hydrochloride, five times as potent as morphine but not habit forming; a record number of new comets; and the unearthing of treasure tombs at Monte Alban in Mexico.

The field of engineering boasts the completion of the Soviet power plant in Dnieprostroy, of a three-mile high level viaduct for auto traffic in New Jersey, and of the dikes which cut off the Zuider Zee from the North Sea, adding to Holland an area almost as large as the state of Rhode Island.

Dry River for Hoover Dam

With the waters of the Colorado river at Boulder City, Nev., being conveyed through the mountain by means of a diversion tunnel, the river bed at the scene of operations is now dry, permitting construction of the Hoover dam to begin. The picture above shows the progress that has been made. The river bed at right is perfectly dry, being separated from the Colorado waters by the temporary dam shown in the center. The entrance to the diversion tunnel may be seen just above the dam on the right bank of the river.

Poor Little Kid

The kid shown above being held by Miss Bobby Miller, Parisian mannequin, looks rather sad. He has just learned that the shoes he has on are none other than his deceased uncle, and realizes that some day he too may be scuffing the pavements. OUR BEST WISHES

Although the past year has not yielded an abundance of prosperity, it has taught us that there are values which contribute more or at least as much to our happiness and well-being as financial abundance. The experiences of this past year have made us more charitable toward our brothers; they have given us more appreciation of each other's efforts, and they have made us more co-operative with each other. Indeed some of us are learning that riches is not the greatest thing in the world.

With these lessons embedded in the souls of all of us, we have the foundation for greater achievements as a people than ever before. May the lessons that you individually have learned, yield abundant returns in the way of harmonious, happy living during the year 1933.

Empty Stockings Are Filled For Christmas Time

A Christmas tree was held Friday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock at the Federated Club rooms by women who have worked in the Empty Stocking Crusade for the benefit of children who would not have had a Christmas tree in their homes. About fifty children were given treats on the tree.

Mrs. John S. Humphreys was chairman of the committee which was in charge of the Empty Stocking Crusade this year.

to go far in tournament play. Richards, 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighing 160; Burk, 6 feet and weighing 165; Monroe, 6 feet 3, weighing 145, are the runts of the squad. The other squadmen range from 6 feet 3 inches to 6 feet 7 inches, and from 185 pounds up to 215 pounds. This is really a team of giants and worthy of their title "Tallest Team in America."

MAKING OR BREAKING

Bringing up children is a problem to all parents. The character of a child is moulded principally in its younger years, and it seldom leaves the pathway it has been trodding in those days. It is made or broke by its parents.

Some parents are always kind to their children, but firm, insisting upon implicit obedience. The world is full of such children, now grown to manhood and womanhood, and they are dominating the really important affairs of the world.

Other parents are weak and vacillating. They coax, wheedle, storm, rave and threaten—but never punish. They are not obeyed, and are often defied. The world is also peopled with those children, now grown men and women. Many of these people are within the four walls of a jail or penitentiary.

It is a problem indeed, and one which many parents fail to solve until too late. The children do it for them—in their own way.

Many people believe that saying, "Fifty Million Frenchmen Can't Be Wrong," should be changed to "One Hundred Million Americans Can Be Wronged."

The average man is less concerned about the "machine age" than he is in how to get more age out of his machine.

A snowfall, which cost New York City $1,500,000, provided jobs for 20,000 unemployed. For these jobless, the snowfall was a windfall.

It seems now that the late World War was practically a free-for-all fight—that is, free for all but America.

Wonder if the doctors don't get discouraged a little when they see some of their charity patients paying cash for their gasoline?

If you have time to waste confine it to your own. Other people often have something better to do.

Let Clothes Put You in a Holiday Mood

FOR THE YEAR'S END, CHOOSE AN INFORMAL DINNER DRESS OF INTERESTING DESIGN IN DARK COLOR

BY HARRIET

IT is the clothes a woman wears that puts her in a festive mood, ready to enjoy Christmas to its fullest.

Remember that and abide by it! The informal holiday things this year are ravishing. And the party dresses for evening dances are perfectly stunning.

Most popular this year are the dresses that are worn when your hostess says, "Don't dress." Formerly that meant your office or everyday apparel. This year it means one of the so-called dinner dresses, maybe even with long sleeves, but made of fabric and a fashion that make you really all dressed up and ready to go anywhere.

Black is the outstanding choice of many women who have only one such dress. Other dark colors are just as good a choice; blues, dark browns, purple or ruddy reds.

Most dinner dresses have a bit of glamour about them, a collar of fine gleaming sequins, sleeves with caps of sparkling diamante, or perhaps the whole waist part made of sheer lace, chiffon or something else lighter in texture than the crepe, velvet, or satin skirt.

One such dinner dress uses a black skirt of chiffon velvet, with the bodice of black crepe lace and the wide sash linking the two of crepe satin. The waist is very simple, a rounded neckline and full sleeves above long, tight cuffs. The skirt is skillfully cut to fit and yet flare.

A SECOND gown is more sophisticated, made of black chiffon velvet with sequin and crystal embroidered net inserted over the cap of the long sleeve to give an epaulet effect. This dress also has a rounded neckline in front but the back is split open, fastening right at the back of the neckline with a little crystal button of the same design as the pretty, modernistic buckle at the belt.

This gown has a little train, made by the back width only. You can have it with or without, depending on just how regal you want to be. For dancing, of course, such a train is nothing but a nuisance, yet there are many women who want a chance to wear a train once in their lives. This winter is the time, certainly.

This is the kind of dress that goes handsomely with one of those little velvet and maline dinner hats. These are cute as can be and becoming to most women. They are little caps of the velvet or other fabric, with brim of stiffened maline or veiling.

If you want a real holiday dancing dress that you must wear several times this Christmas, nothing is lovelier than the white lace of very heavy weave, trimmed with sable-dyed kolinsky. This one is made with a quaintly fitted bodice that is shirred up right down the front. Its bodice fits right into the tight skirt that flares below the hips. There is a little cape effect that covers the arms and swings across the back but is attached only to the shoulder straps in front.

There is a bow of the fur slanting crosswise at the belt line. And the skirt is floor length and has a little train in the back, to give it more formal atmosphere than it would have without it.

The most seasoned cowpunchers in this district have been no match for the cunning of the outlaw cattle. The animals do much of their grazing at night, or in dense thickets where they cannot be reached by the top hands of the Ladder outfit. The region is covered with brush and scrub trees which make it almost impossible to shoot the cattle. Frequent excursions of the cowboys of the Ladder outfit to the Black range in attempts to corner the herd in an arroyo have thus far been fruitless.

The only method which has been at all successful has been the use of traps. These traps are strongly built corrals with V-shaped gates flanked with pointed poles. The cattle pass readily in through the gates, but their horns catch on the poles when they attempt to get out. When a band of outlaw cattle is caught in these traps, cowpunchers attempt to tame them. This is extremely dangerous work, and sometimes both horses and men are gored. If the imprisoned animals appear too ferocious, they are roped by cowpunchers standing outside the trap. Then they are branded and one fore foot of each animal is tied under his jaw. Thus hobbled, they are herded around the inclosure until their spirits are subdued.

Sometimes the outlaws refuse to be domesticated and attack the cowmen as soon as the rope is removed. As a precaution one of the ranch crew stands at the fence with a rifle in hand, ready to shoot any animal that attempts to gore a cowboy.

Old Salty, the bull that for several years led one of the most destructive outlaw bands, recently was captured by the Ladder crew. He refused to become docile, however, and manager Roach shot him as he rushed at a cowpuncher in the trap enclosure, his great head lowered and his nostrils distended.

Manager Roach says he plans to construct a number of traps at strategic points on the Black range in a determined effort to eradicate the outlaw band.

A New York man recently told his wife he was "Just going to step around the corner" and he hasn't been seen since. Probably looking for prosperity.

Hot Iron May Be Displaced By New Branding Method

Artesia (N. M.) Advocate: The red-hot branding-iron, which has been used since the first days of the ranching business to identify the ownership of cattle on the range, may go into the discard, with the adoption of a new branding method which it is claimed is more humane and economical and eliminates the damage to hides that results from the use of the hot iron.

Under the new method, the branding-iron, instead of being applied red-hot to the animal to be branded, is dipped in a chemical compound and applied to the animal in much the same way that the heated iron is used. The liquid burns down to the hide, forming a scab which later falls off, leaving a white mark. It is said that the animal feels no pain at the time of branding.

Officials of the company state that this product has been used in a small way with success for 25 years, but extensive tests have been made in recent years for the purpose of determining definitely whether this branding method could be used successfully under all range conditions and whether the brand would be permanent. It is said that these tests, which have been conducted over a period of two years, have been highly successful, and the new method is now being used quite extensively by range men. Recent tests have shown that the brand can be successfully applied with the liquid even when the hide of the animal is wet.

Some Wolf Story From Wellington

Wellington Leader: People often tell of catching the same fish twice—and that is just a fish story, but Tom Campbell and Herman Oatman have one of the best stories of all times—one that really demands Mr. Ripley's attention. About this time of the year in 1921, Herman Oatman, who has been living on the Campbell Ranch between here and Childress, trapped a young wolf. He put a collar on the wolf and staked him out with a cow chain. Sometime during the night the wolf broke loose and escaped.

Last week, eleven years later, Tom Campbell went out to his traps and found a wolf. Much to his surprise, he found that the wolf wore a collar with about five feet of cow chain attached to it. Mr. Oatman looked over the wolf and identified him as the one he trapped over a decade ago.

None of the wolf trappers, however, are able to explain how the wolf managed to run, catch rabbits or even exist with the piece of chain hindering him all of the time.

Jack Fischer Wins Rhodes Scholarship

Jack Fischer, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Fischer of Amarillo, has recently been awarded a greatly coveted honor. He has been selected for a Rhodes scholarship to Oxford, England.

Young Fischer graduated from the Amarillo high school in 1928. Interested in journalism, he served as editor of the high school paper and after his graduation, became a reporter for the Amarillo News-Globe.

Last June, he graduated from the school of journalism of the University of Oklahoma, and since has been working as a reporter for the Daily Oklahoman.

Mr. Fischer was one of five Rhodes scholars for 1933 selected from six southwestern States.

WHY ARE WE HERE?

Sometimes we think of the many things we would do "if we didn't have to work." The man who heartily wishes he didn't have to work, really wishes he could be a parasite among men, living upon the efforts of others, and doing nothing to help make the world a better place.

It is the lot of the average man to have to earn his daily bread, and it is a blessed lot.

But the man who is a real man does not go to his task in the morning driven by the thought that he has to do it. Rather, he does because it is his nature, and because he likes his work, loves his family, and feels an honest pride in earning an honest living.

As we go along from day to day let's do our best, always to make our store, our office, our community a better place because we have been there a little while.

Roosevelt once said: "I pity no man because he has to work. If he is worth his salt he will work. I envy the man who has a work worth doing and does it well."

To show how history repeats itself: in olden times the women worked at home and the men hunted. It's the same nowadays, except that the men are hunting jobs.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Classified rates are two cents per word for the first insertion, and one cent per word for each subsequent insertion. This rate applies to all legal notices. All classified advertisements must be paid in advance unless arrangements are made in person to care for the payment of them. Classified ads received through the mail will not be published unless accompanied by the cash of insertion. Words are intelligently—do not try to save a few cents by leaving out necessary words; tell who, what, where, and, if essential, when and why.

THE MERCHANT'S SIDE

This buying at home idea has two sides. Merchants who neglect to advertise, who fail to shout their wares, cannot complain when buyers wanting something, order it from a catalog where they see it instead of tramping over town to find out if Mr. So and So has it. We know of business men who think it a crime to send money away from town for merchandise, when local merchants have similar things to sell. These same men, however, neglect to do what is first done by the mail order people, advertise.

The News has talked keeping money at home for many moons. Most merchants and business men have agreed with us. Some of them when approached for advertising, grin and suggest that the public knows all about them. Others, keenly appreciate the advantage of keeping their name in print, give us advertisements, large or small, as the circumstances happen to be.

No cross word puzzler will have to perplex his brain to discover who is going to get most of the business of the people of Canyon.

WHAT BOBBY SANG

Mother: "Bobby, did you do anything besides eat at the picnic?"
Bobbie: "Yes, Mummy, we sang a hymn called, 'We Can Sing, Full Though We Be.'"

Inquiries revealed that the title of the hymn was, "Weak and Sinful Though We Be."—Lindsay Post.
